

Carol Hodge - Short Bio

Carol Hodge is a seven-fingered, piano-pounding, Yorkshire-dwelling Singer-Songwriter. Think Regina Spektor meets Billy Bragg, but with fewer digits and a continuous existential crisis, sandwiched between bitter irony and relentless optimism. You won't know whether to laugh or cry, but will definitely feel something. In case she looks familiar, Carol is a long-term collaborator with Crass founder Steve Ignorant, plays keys for Texan country rock star Ryan Hamilton and has guested with Ginger Wildheart, Headsticks and The Membranes.

Carol Hodge - Medium Bio

Carol Hodge is a seven-fingered, piano-pounding, Yorkshire-dwelling Singer-Songwriter. Think Regina Spektor meets Billy Bragg, but with fewer digits and a continuous existential crisis, sandwiched between bitter irony and relentless optimism.

Active as a solo artist since 2016, Carol's third studio album The Crippling Space Between is now ready for release. Produced by Dave Draper (Jazmin Bean, The Wildhearts, The Professionals), The Crippling Space Between is an unashamed exploration of the emotional rollercoaster that was 2020. Carol flits between musical styles, bridging the gaps with her astute lyricism. A fierce believer in remaining independent, the album will be released on Carol's own label Midnight Stamp.

Previous albums Savage Purge (2020) and Hold On To That Flame (2018) featured on several Top Album end-of-year lists, and 2020 single Stopped Believing In You received significant indie and online radio play, including from BBC Manchester and BBC Bristol. The video for the song Stop Worrying Baby, premiered by Louder Than War, featured Emmerdale star Dominic Brunt.

Carol has collaborated continuously with other artists over the past ten years, and is perhaps best known for her work with Crass founder Steve Ignorant. She took lead vocals on the Last Supper tour in 2011, singing the songs of Crass all over the world, a role which is being reprised in 2021/22. She is the pianist in Steve Ignorant's Slice Of Life, and has performed across the UK and Europe since 2012. When not dabbling in anarcho-punk, Carol provides live keys and BVs for Texan country rock star Ryan Hamilton (signed to Stevie Van Zandt's Wicked Cool Records), and makes occasional guest appearances on keys with The Membranes and The Ginger Wildheart Band.

Carol Hodge - Full Bio

Carol Hodge is a seven-fingered, piano-pounding, Yorkshire-dwelling Singer-Songwriter. Think Regina Spektor meets Billy Bragg, but with fewer digits and a continuous existential crisis, sandwiched between bitter irony and relentless optimism.

Active as a solo artist since 2016, Carol's third studio album The Crippling Space Between is now ready for release. Produced by Dave Draper (Jazmin Bean, The Wildhearts, The Professionals), The Crippling Space Between is an unashamed exploration of the emotional rollercoaster that was 2020. Carol flits between musical styles, bridging the gaps with her astute lyricism. A fierce believer in remaining independent, the album will be released on Carol's own label Midnight Stamp.

"If you've felt isolated and alone inside your own faulty brain, this album is for you. If you've felt angry at the world, and your lack of control over your own existence, this album is for you. If you've felt fearful of the future, completely lost and wondering if life is all just a ridiculous game, this album is definitely for you."

Polished Indie Pop nuggets abound in tracks such as Twenty Miles Up, So Much For Summertime and Scream Of The Sea, while This and Moan Of A Thousand Years bring some heavier rock riffs to the table. Carol's trademark piano-led ballads remain, with More Important and Best Thing In This Town highlighting the honest emotion she is becoming known for.

Carol's second studio album Savage Purge is nearly sold out, with very limited copies remaining on CD and red vinyl 12" at <https://carolhodge.co.uk/shop>. Featuring in top 2020 album lists by Louder Than War, Three Songs And Out, The Ginger Quiff (and album of the year for Where The Music Does The Talking), lead single Stop Worrying Baby, was released on 7th April 2020. Accompanied by a music video featuring a familiar face to many, Dominic Brunt, who plays Paddy Kirk in ITV's Emmerdale, the video was shot and edited by Mark Richards (Slaves, Wonk Unit, Maid Of Ace), in the beautiful West Yorkshire countryside.

The Old Grey Whistle Test homage video for second Savage Purge single Stopped Believing In You was released on 27th November 2020, leading to interviews and airplay by BBC Radio Manchester and BBC Radio Bristol, among many other local stations the UK.

Described by Louder Than War as "The Adele for people into radical politics...a (modern) equivalent to the Tapestry-era Carole King", Carol's debut album Hold On To That Flame was released in 2018 on independent label Chopback, and published by Bomber Music. The album was featured in Louder Than War's Top 25 list of 2018, and received numerous favourable reviews, as well as extensive independent and online radio play.

Carol has collaborated continuously with other artists over the past ten years, and is perhaps best known for her work with Crass founder Steve Ignorant. She took lead vocals on the Last Supper tour in 2011, singing the songs of Crass all over the world, a role which is being reprised in 2021/22. She is the pianist in Steve Ignorant's Slice Of Life, and has performed across the UK and Europe since 2012. When not dabbling in anarcho-punk, Carol provides live keys and BVs for Texan country rock star Ryan Hamilton (signed to Stevie Van Zandt's Wicked Cool Records), and makes occasional guest appearances on keys with The Membranes and The Ginger Wildheart Band.